Abstract: Herman W. Falk founded the Falk Manufacturing Company in 1892 as a small machine shop. The company grew quickly after it developed a process for cast-welding street car rails. Its scope expanded to include a variety of foundry work and then to producing gears for industrial purposes. The company became a subsidiary of Sundstrand in 1968. In 2005, Sundstrand sold Falk to Rexnord of Milwaukee.

Scope and Content: The collection consists of a binder with product catalogs, bulletins, sales convention issues, a company history as well as issues of The Falk Forum and The Falk Reflector.
