Abstract: The collection documents the experience of Milwaukee native, James H. Sullivan. During World War II, Sullivan served with the 22nd Marine Regiment, 6th Marine Division, and was wounded in action at Eniwetok, Marshall Islands in February 1944. He was later called back to active duty in 1950 during the Korean Conflict.

Scope and Content: The bulk of the collection consists of a large number of correspondences, primarily hand-written letters, exchanged between James Sullivan and his fiancé and wife, Ruth Putz during WW II. In addition, the collection contains several folders of correspondences from the same era, with family members and also friends known to both Ruth and James. The letters are arranged by recipient and are in chronological order. The collection also contains official military documents regarding Sullivan’s in the United States Marine Corps (USMC) which includes photo identification cards, honorable discharge papers, a thumbprint identification card, certificates of proficiency, travel orders, a USMC Guidebook, as well as some non-official documents related to his service. In addition, the collection contains some material related to the Sullivan and Putz families such as event invitations, West Division and Washington High School yearbooks, commencement booklets, pocket-sized bibles, and a German-language confirmation certificate. The collection contains a photographic component and is divided into personal and official photographs. The personal photographs include Sullivan and Putz family photographs of school, church, travel and work themes, as well as unofficial photographs related to James Sullivan’s assignment at Camp Lejeune, North Carolina. The official photographs include USMC photographs of the battle of Eniwetok and James Sullivan’s training platoon group photograph.
